ST. CLAIR BOURNE was a towering figure in the documentary film world: a filmmaker, writer, activist, teacher and organizer. He made more than 40 films.

PAUL ROBESON: HERE I STAND

Directed by ST. CLAIR BOURNE, this riveting documentary hits home in its convincing portrait of this African-American's noble struggle and his ardent attempt to remain true to his principles. A perfect meeting of subject and filmmaker, Bourne's epic is one of his greatest achievements and a master class in the synthesis of archival research and modern documentary filmmaking.

This special event is offered free of charge. Seating is limited. Advance RSVP is required.
